Christmas magic in the Dresden Elbland region

Anyone who likes Christmas will love Dresden. A whole ten very distinct Christmas markets make the metropolis on the Elbe a veritable Christmas city. Christmas in Dresden – that also means festive church concerts, fairy tale readings and special exhibitions. Or how about a night lights cruise on the Elbe? Just as the river itself connects historic city-centre areas with gorgeous landscapes, so the Christmas period combines the many different activities across the entire Dresden Elbland region into one spellbinding attraction.

585th Dresden Striezelmarkt

Dresden Striezelmarkt brings the best gifts of all into the city – and is Germany’s oldest Christmas market, now in its 585th year. Stroll the streets, eat some treats and fill your bags with Ore Mountain wood art, Pulsnitz gingerbread, Lusatian woad-dyed fabrics or Herrnhut stars. And of course you mustn’t forget a slice of original Dresdner Christstollen in the light of the huge tiered Ore Mountain candle pyramid. For children, there is a whole world of adventures: making a “Pflaumentoffel” house, baking Christmas cookies at the bakery or visiting a puppet theatre, films, a nostalgic carousel and even a children’s railway.

DresDner striezeltaler

This year will once again see the return of the Striezeltaler. For 10 euros, you can get 11 tokens each worth 1 euro, meaning one token is for free. They will be accepted by all merchants at the Dresden Striezelmarkt. There is only a limited number of Striezeltalers, and they are available exclusively at the Dresden Information Office.

Christmas cheer everywhere

The Striezelmarkt alone does not make Dresden a Christmas city; there are nine other differently themed markets, including one beneath the Frauenkirche (Church of Our Lady) or the mediaeval market in the Stallhof (the palace stable yard). But the entire Elbland region is bathed in a festive Christmas atmosphere. On the village green of Altkötzschenbroda, the quiet marketplaces of Meissen and Pirna or in the castle courtyard at Torgau, there is an amazing variety of enchanting Christmas markets. www.dresden-weihnachten.info
